

Hello ( ͡° ͜ʖ ͡° )

For past week, it finally felt like spring (unusually long one this time) was finally over and summer started. I don't like summer that much as a season - it's too hot, bugs and cyclists everywhere, but I love it as a vibe. Everything feels possible in summer.

With all the stress of the school year, I really want to only one thing - to rest and be really, really, ridiculously good looking. To just hang out with my homies, drink orange mocha frappuccino, dance in the pouring rain.

Here are some things are hopefully going to happen this summer, because I'm set on being a lazy slob and being held publicly accountable is the only thing that can stop me.

To Do

Start crocheting a tote bag

Get better at French

- ★ Learn at least one new time
- ★ Engage with more French media
- ★ Read Asterix without a dictionary
- Star learning Japanese again

★ Master hiragana

★ Star katakana

★ Get to A2

Go camping

Hike some archeological sites

Design my next tattoo

Get more work-appropriate clothing

Try

Calico hair

To find the best strawberry matcha latte in Olomouc

At least three new matcha latte flavours

Tiramisu anything from Starbucks

To be nicer to costumers

To finish that crochet vest

To finish any otome game that isn't demo

To update this blog

To get more into pixel art

To enjoy the mandatory unpaid 3 week archeological excavation ㄟ~ㄟ

Watch

More films by Satoshi Kon

At least 25 mandatory films for my finals

Freaks and Geeks

Akira again

My Own Private Idaho with my sister

I should get over my irrational avoidance of Akira Kurosawa's films

Anything Wim Wenders

Listen

Actually get into Paganini, he doesn't deserve the shallowness I approach him with

Some new nu goth bands

Fresh pop-punk acts for 2025

Brit-pop outside of Oasis and Blur

Any v-kei band that started in 2020s

The entire Offspring and Simple Plan discography to get ready for their concert

Read

Next 200 chapters of Berserk

Neighbourhood Story

Tore Renberg's books that aren't The Man Who Loved Yngve

Naruto again, this time hopefully to the end

All the literary sources I listed for my bachelor thesis

All books about my 1930s Czechoslovak cinema I can find (still for my thesis)

Farewell My Concubine

Anything related to archeology, I really want to pass those exams too

More fanfics

There also some things I would like to avoid, but actually making good decisions wouldn't be very Derek Zoolander of me.

I think that those are quite achievable goals. Let's hope for the best!

I'm writing this from my work. I didn't even know I had a shift today, until my boss messaged me what would I like for dinner (we get food from nearby restaurant). I had to double check our shifts and actually, yes, I had to get my ass from my family apartment to the Olomouc (._.)".

I'm really lucky he worked today, no one else would check me. I really need to be more careful, I like this job and would hate to underperform/get fired.

Also, I finally know where I'm gonna dig this year! Because apparently all of us descent from millionaires, we have to do three weeks of unpaid labour at archeological site of our professor's choice. I'm probably going to Valašské Meziříčí. There were not a lot of other choices, and this one was closest. because I will need to work through this. Three weeks off work isn't really possible for me, so I'm gonna be an archaeologist during the day and receptionist during the night. When am I gonna be a well rested person?

Only time will show. I will possibly die, hehe.

So until next time! (•_•) ✧